The elder Dumas, who wrote many successful plays, as well as the famous romances, said that all he needed for constructing a drama was four boards, two actors, and a passion. What he meant by passion has been defined by a later French writer, Ferdinand Brunetire, as a conflict of wills. When two strong desires conflict and we wonder which is coming out ahead, we say that the situation is dramatic. This clash is clearly defined in any effective play, from the crude melodrama in which the forces are hero and villain with pistols, to such subtle conflicts, based on a mans misunderstanding of even his own motives and purposes. In comedy, and even in farce, struggle is clearly present. Here our sympathy is with...
