I mean, it almost leaves you speechless to look at this chart. That is the U. S. trade deficit. This is 2005; I think the largest trade deficit in our history, the largest trade def-icit in our history. The current account deficit is even a little worse; hard to believe, but the current account deficit is worse. It is now at 6. 5 percent of GDP. This is the current account deficit. The U. S. current account deficit. Senator S. What was the first year on this chart I can-CHUMER not see. ARBANES Senator S. 1980; and this is 2005, 805 billion, 6. 5 percent of GDP. You are the Secretary of the Treasury. I always thought Secre-taries of the Treasury worried about this kind of thing, that it was kind of a prime item on their agenda, not something to be dis-missed or taken lightly. The sharp deterioration in our inter-national net position has left us at an unsustainable level. Warren Buffett recently said right now, the rest of the world owns 3 tril-lion more of us than we own of them. And he went on: In my view, it will create political turmoil at some point. Pretty soon, I think there will be a big adjustment. Buffett is not along in these warnings. The International Mone-tary Fund recently stated in the World Economic Outlook, the large current account deficit in the United States increases the risk of...
