Excerpt: . . . 10 achieving a peak altitude of about 70 miles to win the Ansari X Prize. Several entrepreneurial launch companies are planning to start taking paying passengers, also known as space flight participants, on suborbital flights within the next few years. Virgin Galactic intends to enter commercial suborbital space flight service around 2009, launching from a spaceport in New Mexico, and according to the company, plans to carry 3, 000 passengers over the subsequent 5 years, with 100 individuals having already paid the full fare of 200, 000. In addition, 4 individuals have already paid an estimated 20 million each for space flights to the International Space Station on a Russian vehicle that launches from Kazakhstan. According to a Futron Corporation market study on space tourism, the orbital and suborbital space tourism market could attract up to 15, 000 passengers and generate revenues in excess of 1 billion per year by 2021, with suborbital space tourism likely generating the most 11 demand. Several other companies in the United States and...
